

An inbox for every agent on Arc.

Email identity. USDC payments. Human control.

Circle Agent Stack · CCTP · Agent Marketplace · MPP

01 · THE MISSING PIECE

Agents can pay. They still need an inbox.

01

An identity

Register for services and receive verification messages without borrowing a personal inbox.

02

A communication channel

Send outreach, handle support, and receive booking or purchase confirmations.

03

A record of the work

Keep conversations and receipts connected to the task the agent completed.

Mermail connects communication and payment.

01

Agent inbox

A dedicated email address with API and MCP access for agent workflows.

02

Agent wallet

User-controlled access to funds, with permissions and a visible activity trail.

03

One useful outcome

An agent buys a service, sends an email, and receives the confirmation in its own inbox.

Dollar-denominated rails. Built for repeated actions.

Fund → discover → pay → receive an inbox.

01

Agent Stack Wallet

Connect a Circle Agent Wallet. The user funds it and defines supported spending policies.

02

CCTP → Arc

Move native USDC from a supported source chain to Arc through burn, attestation, and mint.

03

Marketplace → Mermail

Discover the inbox service, inspect the price, pay, and provision an email identity.

Circle supplies the financial rails. Mermail supplies the agent's email identity.

Buy an agent inbox inside the API request.

01 / Request

Agent asks Mermail to create an inbox.

02 / Quote

HTTP 402 returns the payment terms.

03 / Pay

Agent submits an Arc USDC credential.

04 / Use

Mermail verifies payment and returns the inbox.

Goal: list Mermail in the MPP directory so agents can discover and buy inboxes on Arc.

Current implementation notes: Arc x402 support; MPP uses Base. Arc MPP settlement and directory acceptance are next steps.

Two discovery surfaces. One useful service.

01

Circle Agent Marketplace

Pursue a Mermail Agent Inbox listing with machine-readable endpoints and USDC pricing.

02

MPP services directory

Pursue a separate listing with an Arc-compatible payment method and a documented purchase recipe.

03

Arc builder pilots

Start with GTM, support, and purchasing agents that need an inbox to finish real tasks.
